#COVID19 Helping the most vulnerable people through the most local action in Myanmar and globally

Mon state – temperature screening and registering of returning migrants from Thailand

Our life-saving journey continues...

and the Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies around the world, including Myanmar Red Cross Society, are stepping up COVID-19 response across three urgent areas of concern:

First, to ensure that the most vulnerable people have access to health, water and hygiene services.

Second, to mitigate the social and economic impacts of the pandemic on communities.

Third, to make sure our staff and volunteers are well supported and protected to continue this important work.

Addressing most dire needs in quarantine facilities

“ Most of the people in this quarantine facility are returning migrants from China, but also from big cities like Yangon and Mandalay. Their jobs are all either gone or suspended due to COVID-19. People here rely on their family to provide food, but some families live far or cannot afford to bring food. The Red Cross volunteers in our branches are raising funds from local donors and also from our own pockets to bring food and purified water, which are the biggest needs here. We also brought soap and distributed two handmade masks per person as well which one can wash and re-use.

I do different activities in the facility including disinfection and even initiated an exercise time as people do not really have physical activities during their time here. To make this time more useful, I also did some mine risk and first aid knowledge session. And you know what happened? Four people, three female and one male, who have been quarantined here for three weeks, came to the local Red Cross branch after they are discharged and said they want to become a Red Cross volunteer. They are now part of our team!”

Preparing for 2020 Monsoon season

MRCS Secretary General Prof. Dr. Htin Zaw Soe presented during a Humanitarian Country Team (HCT) meeting on 29 May 2020, about MRCS's preparedness measures put in place ahead of the monsoon season within the challenges posed by the COVID-19. The presentation, prepared jointly with IFRC, can be found in here.

Dengue prevention

In addition to the COVID-19 community activities and in preparation for the coming monsoon season when dengue cases tend to increase in Myanmar, MRCS branches around the country have disseminated Dengue prevention messages, such as getting rid of stagnant water around the house. Fumigation with insecticide is also taking place.
